

The Liechtenstein Chamber of Lawyers

Liechtenstein lawyers are a reliable partner for their clients in all legal matters and transactions across all areas of law.

A key pillar of this is comprehensive, independent and professional legal advice. The relationship of mutual trust is further protected by law through legal professional privilege. Should legal disputes arise, the lawyer also represents their clients in all judicial and extrajudicial matters before the courts and administrative authorities in Liechtenstein.

In addition to providing legal advice before national courts and authorities, the lawyer also represents clients before national and international arbitration tribunals. This ensures that comprehensive support is provided even in matters of international law.

Lawyers in Liechtenstein are bound by a duty of confidentiality. Furthermore, communication between lawyer and client is protected by legal professional privilege. The highest level of discretion is therefore guaranteed by law.

Law firms must have their registered office in Liechtenstein.

Professionalism and integrity are the cornerstones of a lawyer's practice in Liechtenstein. Lawyers must meet the requirements for practising law. They are also subject to supervision by the Liechtenstein Bar Association and to the disciplinary authority of the Princely Supreme Court.
